Anzac Cove

Anzac Cove is a small beach on the Gallipoli Peninsula. It was here that the ANZACs (Australian and New Zealand Army Corps) landed on April 25th, 1915. The landing was a disaster. The ANZACs were met with heavy fire from the Turkish defenders, and they were forced to retreat to the beach. They were pinned down by Turkish snipers for eight months, and they suffered heavy losses.

Today, Anzac Cove is a place of remembrance. There are several memorials and monuments to the ANZACs who fought and died here. The most famous of these is the Lone Pine Memorial.
