The Lyrics

The lyrics of Before You Say Do Lennox In Love are simple and straightforward, yet they are also very powerful. The song begins with the singer asking his lover, "Before you say do Lennox in love?" This question sets the tone for the rest of the song, which explores the themes of love, trust, and commitment.

The singer goes on to sing about how he has been hurt in the past, and how he is now afraid to open his heart again. He is afraid of being rejected, of being hurt again. However, he also knows that he cannot live without love. He needs to find someone who he can trust, someone who will love him unconditionally.

The chorus of the song is a powerful declaration of love: "I'm in love with you, I can't deny it anymore. I'm ready to give you my heart, my soul, my everything." The singer is finally ready to take the risk of loving again. He is ready to open his heart and let someone in.

The bridge of the song is a beautiful and poetic description of the singer's love for his partner. He sings about how his partner makes him feel alive, how they make him feel complete. He says, "You're the only one who can make me feel this way. You're the only one who can make me feel complete."

The song ends with the singer repeating the chorus: "I'm in love with you, I can't deny it anymore. I'm ready to give you my heart, my soul, my everything." The song fades out with the singer's voice echoing in the distance.
